On The Andover Boardwalk

(A Townsman News Feature)

A giant ice cube was left buried in the ground in our town some time ago. It gradually melted there and a very peculiar assortment of plant life grew on top of the muck, water, and mire that filled the hole the ice cube left.

Biologist John Kimball, 89 Prospect Road, invites you to walk the boardwalk of the Bog Nature Trail, the latest addition to the Charles W. Ward Reservation, and see these results -- some northern and mountain plant species, some far southern species, such as orchids and the insect-eating pitcher plant, and some other plant species which exist nowhere except in bogs.

The Bog Nature Trail, which Kimball said would be open to the public with the publication of this issue of the TOWNSMAN, is brand new. Its 700 foot boardwalk is the result of the planning and work of Kimball, chief local trustee of the Ward Reservation, and a group of interested Phillips Academy students who began the project two years ago.

The bog itself is far from new. The mammoth ice cube was a glacial oversight, a chunk of ice left buried in the earth when the last (we hope) of the New England glaciers began to recede 12,000 to 14,000 years ago.

The resulting "kettlehole" on what became, in 1940, the Charles W. Ward Reservation, filled up with melting ice and the rains that have fallen since, and became a sea of muck. Water plants first grew on its top and later other plants.

The tall trees and other vegetation are supported by a matting of decayed vegetation that looks like, but isn't, solid ground. Kimball said that the students helping him had tried to plumb the depths of the bog and had bored down 19 feet without reaching firm bottom. You can make the trees "quake" by jumping up and down on the bog, but be sure you do your jumping only at the place

Bancroft Walks Are A Problem

Time has run out on the town's power to take land by eminent domain for access routes to Bancroft School from Moreland Road and from West Knoll Road on the south, the school committee learned this week, -- and the town never has had the power to take land for sidewalks on Holt Road, although it has appropriations earmarked to build them.

Schoolmen expressed dismay Tuesday night and Mrs. Cole, who reported the facts, said Selectman Chairman Robert Watters had expressed similar dismay at the town's inability to deliver on their promises of either the southern

Andover Has Appeal To Superintendent

By Helen Eccles

Dr. Kenneth R. Seifert, named Tuesday as Andover's next Superintendent of Schools, said he was drawn to Andover by the school committee's "frank open discussion of educational matters" and by what the building of the Bancroft School told him about the Andover community.

The 34-year-old New York Stater holds a doctorate in education from Cornell, and is presently assistant to the superintendent of the 68,000-pupil Clark County School District in Las Vegas, Nevada. He will begin his duties in Andover on or about August 1, at a salary of $23,000.

Dr. Seifert is a graduate of the State University of New York in Buffalo who has taught school in various New York State elementary and secondary schools as well as in Munich, Germany for the U.S. Department of Defense. He was an elementary principal in Corning, N.Y. and administrative assistant in Ithaca, N.Y. before moving to Las Vegas in 1967.

He told the TOWNSMAN Tuesday that he had accepted Andover's offer not for geographical reasons - but because Andover seemed to have the "educational ingredients that I was looking for. I was interested in 6 to 9 school districts that had contacted me, and I would have chosen Oregon, as easily as Massachusetts, if another school district had offered the ingredients I was looking for; the critical variable was the interaction of the school committee - they seemed friendly, progressive, interacted well, together and they say what they think. I'm that way and I like it."

The superintendent-elect was one of six or eight finalists the school committee interviewed and he gained his first favorable impressions of the community on a three-day visit here. He confessed that the Bancroft school had been a drawing card.

"Structurally, as an environment for children's learning, the Bancroft school probably is one of the best I've seen in the United States, and I've traveled a lot... It shows a certain community attitude to have taken a step like that, just as the makeup of the school committee itself tells you something about a town."

Dr. Seifert added that the committee had given him the impression that they intended to make the educational program developing at Bancroft possible for all the schools in the community and he assumed that was one of the reasons why they wanted him. He said he was particularly interested in being a superintendent in a town of Andover's size, which offered opportunities for working in close contact with both faculty and students.

Dr. Seifert told the TOWNSMAN reporter who telephoned him in Las Vegas that he intends to visit Andover within the next three weeks, to sit down and talk with administrators and teachers before the school year is out.

He moves to the Andover superintendency from top troubleshoot-

Commencement Time Is Here

Commencement time is here once again and contained in the pages of this week's TOWNSMAN are pictures and stories of high school, preparatory school and college and university graduates.

These are supplied by the schools for the most part.

Sometimes, however, a student is overlooked for some reason.

If, within a reasonable period of time, the academic honors are not recorded in the pages of the TOWNSMAN, we would appreciate someone reaching us in order that we may properly record this most important event.

Watters Expresses Objection

Selectman Robert A. Watters has forwarded a letter to the Boston Herald, objecting to editorial comment made by the paper relative to the Memorial Day incidents in Andover.

Watters, chairman of the board, read the letter to his colleagues Monday night.

The editorial noted the Memorial Day problems at the Coffee Mill and suggested that President Nixon, if he wants peace and domestic tranquility, should visit Andover as a challenge.

The Herald in an accompanying editorial commented on conditions in Moscow and how some agreements had been reached.

Watters made reference to both editorials in his letter.

The one dealing with Andover's problem, noted that President Nixon had mentioned peace 22 times in his recent address to the nation, and that if he was desirous of such, a visit to Andover might prove provocative.

Watters letter reads: "Your editorial of May 31st entitled 'Peace Is Provocative' is

Voke School Holds Its First Graduation

The Greater Lawrence Vocational Technical High school conducted its first graduation exercises Wednesday night, marking an important occasion for the West Andover school.

While serving a region, the school is a part of the Andover academic community, and its initial graduation was a part of two important occasions for the young institution this week.

There were 14 young Andover men receiving diplomas from Fred S. Tarbox of Andover, chairman of the regional school committee, and a member of the original planning committee for the school.

Dr. Robert E. Maurer of Bell Telephone Laboratories, delivered the commencement address and other speakers included Superintendent-Director James A. Booth and Walter J. Markham, director of the bureau of vocational education.

The invocation was given by Rabbi Harry A. Roth of Temple Emanuel of Lawrence and the benediction was given by Rev. James A. Fraser of First Methodist church, North Andover.

The school glee club and instrumental ensemble, provided musical accompaniment and entertainment for the occasion.

The ceremonies marked an important week in the history of the regional school.

In addition to conducting its first graduation, school officials were given the green light to go ahead with expansion plans when the town of North Andover, Monday night approved the bonded indebtedness which would be necessary. The towns of Andover and Methuen along with the city of Lawrence had previously approved contracting for the debt access routes or the sidewalks on Holt Road, presently closed to outside motor traffic during walk-to-school hours.

However, a walkway through to Holt Road for school children along Milliken property, is authorized and slated for summer construction.

Chairman Dr. Richard A. Katz will attend a meeting which Watters reportedly will hold this week with the heads of all town boards involved, to determine what articles should be put before the October Town Meeting.

Katz will press for right of eminent domain for sidewalks within the one-mile limit of not only Bancroft but all elementary schools; he will also ask for new power to take easements from Bancroft property to Moreland Road and to West Knoll Road, against future need.

The committee decided not to push for a road to be built to either of these roads at this point. An inspection of school population patterns in the area convinced them that this would not turn enough bussing children into more economical walkers to warrant the expense.

The walkway which the Building committee has planned from the school to Holt Road will provide for safety, it is felt, and convert 82 children currently on busses into more economical walking school children. Children on the other side of Route 125 will continue to be bussed.

The committee remains adamant, however, on the need for Holt Road sidewalks, and pinned their hopes on head selectman Watters' suggestion that planning for Holt Road sidewalks could proceed this summer, so that construction could begin as soon as town meeting permission for the land-taking is obtained in October. A doubtful factor is the town engineer's concern that Holt Road sidewalks may bring up some drainage problems.

The whole issue began to surface two weeks ago when the Bancroft School building committee informed the school committee that they were planning the pedestrian path from the school to Holt Road instead of the road to Moreland Road as originally planned. The Building committee said the road would create a subdivision and as such fall under the prohibitively expensive subdivision restrictions of the planning board, including provision of a water main.

Meanwhile, the power of eminent domain for this access and that to West Knoll Road expired without the town acquiring either property. Town Counsel Frederic O'Brien has stated that he had urged the town manager and selectmen to acquire the property in time.

Mrs. Cole reported Tuesday night that apparently the Building committee had made the decision against building the road unaware that the Planning Board, in December, had granted certain money-saving exceptions for this road, provided it were used only as a school road. By the end of Tuesday night's discussions, there seemed to be no regrets about the Building Committee's decision against building a road to Moreland at this time, but dismay at the town's failure to acquire the easements for future need.

As for Holt Road sidewalks, town meeting passed the appropriations for sidewalks, some of them promised for Holt Road, but an article for land-taking was omitted from the warrant. The school committee voted Tuesday night to continue to demand sidewalks for all roads within the one-mile limit of Andover schools, for children's safety, and to permit some children now bussing to be able to walk to school.

	Won	Lost
Twins	7	2
Red Sox	5	3
Yankees	5	4
Tigers	4	4
White Sox	4	5
Indians	1	8

This was the most exciting week of the season. The League leading Twins showed they were mortal as they dropped two and won one. The Red Sox vaulted into second place on the strength of two wins. And the first no hit, no run game of the season was recorded by Gregg Mizzell of the Yankees as he muzzled the Indians.

As usual, the Twins' games were the focal point of the week. In their first loss, a wild affair ending in a 14 to 13 victory by the White Sox, the score was tied four times and the Twins actually led going into the last frame. Then, the White Sox pushed across two runs in the persons of Mike Henderson and Mark Hamilton. Mike Henderson shut the door in the bottom of the sixth and suddenly we had a pennant race instead of a runaway. Keith Verrette slammed out a bases loaded home run and a single to spark the Twins losing effort.

On the opposite side of the scale we had the tight 2-1 Twins' victory over the Tigers with that man again, Keith Verrette striking out seven and holding the Tigers at bay with only Doug Merkel and Bud Fichera solving his slants.

Now, how about that no-hitter! Gregg Mizzell completely handcuffed the Indians and chipped in with a base hit. Gregg's support came from Daryl Gustafson with a home run and Bill Delucca performing acrobatics at third base. Other stars were Buddy Fichera leading the Tigers to a win; M. Lalonde with a homerun for the Indians; Dave Walker and Ken Loffreda pacing the Red Sox to their fourth straight win and second place.

P.A. Athletics Conclude

The Phillips Academy spring athletic season ended on an encouraging note this past week. Against traditional rival Exeter, P.A. won four contests in six tries. The tennis and lacrosse squads won as predicted, the track team beat Exeter for the first time in 10 years by a slim 1-point margin, and the baseball team edged Exeter 4-3 in 10 innings. The baseballers dropped an earlier decision to Exeter and the golfers were upset 61/2-21/2.

Peter Sorota of Andover was instrumental in the track team's win. Hampered by a bruised heel, he nevertheless made a surprise appearance in the pole vault event and won it with a jump of 12 feet. Sorota also led the team in total points scored for the season.

Three Andoverites helped pace P.A. lacrosse to a 10-1 record and the New England championship. Cobber Eccles was a leading scorer and put in the two clinching goals that defeated the Boston Lacrosse Club earlier in the season. Per Bro and "Chunk" Landry also starred on defense.

The baseball team, after dropping a 5-4 heartbreaker earlier to Exeter, bounced back last Saturday to win 4-3. Down by one going into the bottom half of the tenth inning, Andover's Ken Mulvaney drew a walk with the bases loaded to tie the game. Bob McDonald then lined a sharp single to right for the victory. John Wagner got the win for P.A. in relief of Bob Corcoran.

The tennis team ended its season with a 5-4 victory over Exeter. Jeff Claus (#2 man) kept his undefeated status intact. The golfers—perhaps suffering from a mild case of overconfidence—were upset by Exeter 61/2-21/2 at Amesbury C.C., a neutral site.

The Andover rowing crew did not compete against Exeter but provided a pleasant surprise at the New England regatta in Worcester May 24. The varsity crew placed a creditable fourth in that race, but the J.V. rowers shocked the favored Kent School to take first place.

The three outstanding teams this spring: golf, 5-2 record despite an off-day against Exeter; lacrosse, 10-1 record, win vs. Exeter, and New England championship; track, 2nd in interscholastics, 1st win against Exeter in 10 years; tennis, undefeated vs. prep schools, New England championship.

West School Holds Program

The third grade class of Mrs. M. Rita Cronin of the West Elementary school presented the Memorial Day Program recently. The announcer was Lee Blumberg. The Proclamation by Governor Francis Sargent was read by Heidi

Smith.

A poem was recited by the entire class and the following songs were sung by the class. "America," "The Battle Hymn Of The Republic," and "America The Beautiful."

A drum solo by Mark Duttweiler. Taps were played by Kenneth LaFleur and George Bragdon.

Three To Get Lowell Degrees

Three Andover girls will be among the 299 recipients of undergraduate degrees at the commencement exercises of Lowell State College on June 8.

Kathleen A. Harnedy, 2 Carisbrook St., will be awarded a bachelor of arts in English degree, and Donna M. Lynch, 39 Gray Road, and Bobbie J. Ota, 160 Salem St. will receive bachelor of science in education degrees.

This year's graduation activities will commemorate the 75th anniversary of the founding of Lowell State College. In addition to the undergraduate degrees, 40 masters degrees will be awarded to members of the first class to complete studies at the Lowell State College Graduate School.

The schedule for commencement begins at 3 p.m. on June 8, with a Baccalaureate ceremony in the Little Theater of the College. The traditional planting of ivy will take place at 3:45 in front of the Administration building. At 4 p.m. the class of 1969 will be honored by the sophomore class at a reception and 75th anniversary tea in the student lounge, while the honorary degree and graduate degree recipients will be feted by the Alumni Association at a reception and 75th anniversary tea in Concordia Hall.

Receives Degree

Joan Smyth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smyth, 117 Lowell St., was awarded the Bachelor of Arts degree in elementary education from MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill., at its 118th commencement on Sunday, June 1. Two hundred forty-four students were candidates for the Bachelor of Arts degree, including 132 from the 123-year-old College for Women and 112 from the College for Men, founded in 1955.

Vacation Loan

Do you know that you can borrow books now that do not need to be returned until September 15?
The only requirement is that the books, either fiction or non-fiction must be over one year old and not in special demand. The extended quarterly loan is a great aid to vacationers who would be unable to return their books during the three week loan period.

Car Exhibit

A collection of old toy cars and trucks, which have been loaned to the library by the collector,
Dr. Clinton B. Seeley of Andover, is now on exhibit in the main library.

Most of the models on display were made during the 1920's and 1930's and are the ancestors of today's Matchbox toys. Especially interesting are cars from the Funnies Series of toy cars.
Each car is driven by a different Comic stripe character, Andy Gump, Moon Mullins, Smitty or Herbie.

Dr. Seeley started his collection as a child, but he has been seriously collecting only since 1961.
He has written articles for car model magazines and has appeared on local television discussing his hobby. The toy cars will be on display for the next two weeks.

Reference

"May I still purchase this book?" is a frequent question at the reference desk. The question is answered by a mammoth-sized reference book, "Books in Print, 1968," which lists some 247,000
book titles currently available from publishers.

The 3,100-page, two volume "Books in Print" covers every U.S. adult and juvenile book currently in print. The listings represent the output of 1,945 American publishing houses.

are too often willing to spend money to confine juvenile and adult offenders but unwilling to extend their concern to help them reestablish themselves in their communities after release.

Rev. Mr. Dobson, who will address an open meeting at South Church on June 11 at 8 p.m., on the topic of rehabilitation of offenders, points out that 90 percent of those presently in our prisons or juvenile detention centers will be released in time but that communities often thwart the process of rehabilitation into law-abiding citizens by taking negative attitudes toward ex-prisoners or detainees. Our concept of punishment, Rev. Mr. Dobson stresses, is changing from that of mere payment for an offense or of painful imprisonment to deter other offenders or repeaters to the principle of rehabilitation in which the prison or detention center is working to restore the offender to society with usable skills and improved social attitudes.

This concept which is hardly new but often ill-understood by the average citizen, means less confinement or drudgery in painful surroundings and more training in occupational skills and personal living while maintaining contact with the local community. In juvenile cases this means less use of juvenile detention centers as places of restraint and more use as bases for competent guidance while the juvenile often remains with his family in his community. Inevitably, however, the newer approach requires that the community help in the task of restoring the offender to society by accepting him as a full member of the community after his rehabilitation and affording him opportunities in jobs, community groups, education and stable social relationships.

It is this community help, Rev. Mr. Dobson feels, which is often lacking and which impedes the successful operation of rehabilitation procedures. The result is that the offender persists in anti-social behavior, receives further punishment, and becomes emotionally hardened as an outcast. Perhaps 90 percent adult offenders have already had a record of juvenile misdemeanors which concerted community effort might have treated successfully.

Rev. Mr. Dobson has been a visitor to Norfolk State Prison for the past five years; his interest in rehabilitation of prisoners having been sparked by the concern of his own congregation at First Church over the imprisonment of one of its deacons. This interest in developing community support for adult rehabilitation led to contacts with the Youth Service centers of the Commonwealth and the discovery of their outmoded disciplinary procedures, lack of utilization of trained psychological personnel, and inadequate data on which to judge types of juvenile offenders and their histories after detention. Rev. Mr. Dobson became a strong voice for reform of the Youth Service Division, a reform now reflected in a bill awaiting final approval by the General Court which will create a new Youth Service Division. He is a member of the subcommittee on Crime and Rehabilitation of the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ and recently secured the support of the UCC annual meeting for the new Youth Service Department.

Rev. Mr. Dobson's talk will be followed by a discussion period. Everyone in Andover who is concerned with the problem of restoring potential or actual criminals to society is urged to attend. The meeting is sponsored by the Social Action Committee of South Church, and the UCC Social Action Chairman, Mrs. Lawrence Burr, for northern Essex County.

the brochure directs! This is why 700 feet of boardwalk had to be plotted and built before visitors could walk through the bog without sinking in up to their armpits and beyond.

Now the most timid nature lover can walk the bog without galoshes, and appreciate the strange collection of plant life that is peculiar to bogs. Metal numbers mark species of special interest, which are explained by brochures available at the beginning of the trail.

The entrance of the 1100-foot trail is at the southeast corner of the Ward Reservation Parking lot, whose driveway is opposite 62 Prospect Road. Here stands a sturdy wooden box containing the explanatory brochures. Kimball said the box was the gift of Fitzgerald, Henderson and Porter, the firm which constructed the boardwalk.

The trail leads down through woods where lady's slippers are in bloom this week to the approach to the bog, where the boardwalk begins.

The boardwalk takes the visitor past cattails, and miniature wild calla blooming, and winds past a dozen observation posts to the pond in the center of the bog. The brochure explains the centuries-long process of the building of bog life, and points out the succession of types of plant life.

The building of the Bog Nature Trail represents the fulfilling of John Kimball's ambition to make it possible for more people to become curious about, to begin to understand and to enjoy the variety of natural growth and beauty around them.

Such reservations as the Ward Reservation, set aside by Mabel B. Ward in memory of her husband in 1940, preserve areas of natural beauty for this purpose. The Ward Reservation, Kimball points out, is not owned by the Commonwealth, as some people seem to think. It is owned and administered by the Trustees of Reservations, a non-profit charitable organization that maintains for public enjoyment 46 such reservations scattered throughout the Commonwealth.

Phillips Academy students who assisted in the initial planning of the Bog Nature Trail are Fred Strebeigh, John Wagner, Tom Sperry, Hal Richardson, John Knapp, Burgess Walker, Dan Kent, Richard Stewart and Coles McBee.

Reception For Students To Follow Annual Meeting

The Andover Committee For A Better Chance, Inc., will hold its annual meeting on Wednesday evening, June 11, at 8 p.m. at the Bancroft school. An informal reception for the first AC/ABC graduates, Mark Ayers, Angel Dominguez, and Clayton White, will follow the meeting.

During the business portion of the meeting, the membership will be asked to vote on six by-law amendments. The treasurer's report and the 1969-70 budget will be read, and there will be nominations and elections of AC/ABC officers for the coming year.

Tom Mikula, director of Project ABC at Dartmouth College, will address the meeting on "The Growth of ABC in Public Schools." Project ABC was begun originally in private preparatory schools to help disadvantaged young men and women develop their talents and abilities so they could go on to college and ultimate positions of leadership in society. The number of such young people of ability was so great, that private schools soon found themselves with long waiting lists. In order to offer these talented young people the opportunity for a better chance, the project was extended into public high schools. When the Andover committee for A Better Chance, Inc., became host to ten young men in the ABC program in September, 1967, Andover High school was the second public high school in the country to participate in the project.

A panel discussion, "Aspects of Life at 134 Main and Andover High," will also be part of the agenda at the annual meeting. Participants will be the three graduates, Mark Ayers, Angel Dominguez, and Clayton White, and resident tutors Pete Imber and Cleve Pemberthy.

William Deacon, resident director of AC/ABC will address the meeting and answer questions from the audience.

Refreshments will be served at the informal reception, and all interested persons are invited.

"If everyone needs to visit Andover, it is the writer of the editorial; first, to find out all the facts regarding the incident in question, and, secondly, to spend some profitable time in the history section of our fine library rereading perhaps the story of the Trojan Horse and other similar historical incidents.

"It is significant that your editorial preceding the one on Andover urges us to have closer co-operation and rapport with our 'Soviet counterparts'. In view of your apparent desire to send President Nixon on inspection trips, I am surprised that you did not suggest that he pay a visit to Hungary or Czechoslovakia to see how they enjoy Soviet co-operation."

An Accomplishment

June is graduation month and we compliment those who have completed their scholastic endeavors.

Here, in Andover, however, we must take particular pride in a particular graduation — that of the Greater Lawrence Regional Vocational Technical High school.

This is the first graduating class and represents an accomplishment and the fulfillment of the dreams of many men who have devoted time and energy toward providing a needed service for our youth.

There will be 14 young men from Andover receiving diplomas.

We congratulate them for their pursuit toward a particular goal, whether it be in the fields of drafting, automotive work, culinary arts, electrical work, or whatever it may be.

Their accomplishment, as well as those who brought about the "Voke" school are a credit to the community in particular and to Greater Lawrence in general.

We make note of the Vocational school graduation in particular since it has provided a definite need for the area's young people. Contemplated expansion of the school will provide for even further needs.

We live in an age where education is a most necessary item.

Not all are prepared for college education, and knowingly so, set forth on other educational pursuits. To this end, the vocational school has provided an adequate and excellent service to the area.

We salute all the graduates who will be receiving diplomas and degrees this June.

But we note in particular this first graduating class from the vocational school.

They have worked hard to attain their chosen goals.

We feel it laudable that this initial class enters the workaday world as the initial graduates of an excellent institution.

Congratulations

We welcome to our borders Dr. Kenneth R. Seifert, as the new superintendent of schools.

Dr. Seifert, a native of New York, now an administrator in Las Vegas, Nevada, comes to Andover with considerable background particularly in the administrative area.

He will arrive in Andover because he was impressed with the community and with its educational system.

He is young, an advantage to Andover. The community can well use youthful administration, in an era when the young are rambunctious.

We are sure from his background that he will be a good administrator here.

Administering a school system is a difficult job in these days.

It would appear that the school committee made a proper choice in selecting Dr. Seifert. Able administration of an already excellent school system is a necessity and it would appear the successor to Supt. Edward I. Erickson completely meets the requirements.

The Letters

In accompanying columns are letters to the editor which we welcome. We hope that people read our editorial comment and either agree or disagree.

The letters deal principally with the Memorial Day incidents here in Andover.

Those who have commented have disagreed with our editorial comment relative to the incidents.

We repeat our feeling that Americans have a right to dissent. We further repeat our feeling that the armband wearers took a particularly poor day to protest — a solemn occasion, Memorial Day.

Many young people today join in protest because it happens to be in vogue. They know not what they are protesting, just joining the crowd.

There are those who incite situations, as may have been the case in Andover on Memorial Day.

The comments made by those who have submitted letters are well taken, but we still stick with our feeling for patriotism and deplore the actions of those who demonstrated on Memorial Day.

What Our Readers Say

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN

The editorial of May 29th entitled "A Disgrace" demonstrates that the Townsman has apparently completely misunderstood what was disgraceful in Andover on Memorial Day. There were two disgraceful incidents:

1. A high school boy was severely beaten for wearing a Peace armband.

2. A number of persons were discriminated against by a restaurant for wearing Peace armbands.

Your editorial reflects confused thinking about the purpose of Memorial Day, the meaning of peace armbands and the present U.S. policy in regard to the war in Vietnam.

1. Memorial Day is not a tribute to the Armed Forces; it is a memorial to persons who died due to war.

2. The peace armbands are worn by persons opposed to war and further loss of lives.

3. President Nixon has stated that the United States' primary goal in Vietnam is peace.

Supporters of peace, wearing peace armbands on Memorial Day seems very appropriate when you stop and think that Memorial Day is simply a reminder of man's failure to prevent war and maintain peace.

Peter B. Olney
Shawsheen Road

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN

Although I am sure that you did not so intend it, I cannot imagine a more inflammatory editorial than that written by you in regard to the Memorial Day difficulties in Andover.

Please consider carefully these questions:

What more fitting day is there than Memorial Day to show by symbol our deep desire for a world peace unmarred by the tragedy and suffering which always accompany war? While we pay tribute and respect to those who died for us and for our country, is it not also fitting that we express our concern with finding a peaceful means for solving our differences? Is it unpatriotic to hope for the day when men will not have to die to show their loyalty?

And who was it that... "made a shambles of paying tribute to those who have given their lives to preserve the freedom of our country...?"

Was it the students who removed their arm bands before participating in the service because they were asked to by the parade marshal?

Was it the arm band wearers who were pushed, snatched at, and attacked from behind?

Was it the students and young adults who threatened and assaulted armband wearers?

Was it the parade officials who would not even listen to the students beliefs?

Was it the boy who was knocked unconscious by a blow from behind?

Was it the restaurant manager who refused service in a public restaurant because he dislikes armbands?

Was it the police who showed their disapproval for those wearing armbands?

Was it the police who rescued a group of armband wearers who were under physical attack?

Was it the adults who see only evil where there is both good and evil?

Was it an editor who can only describe one position in a controversy --- and who may be able to see only one side of the problem?

Was it I who was angered by your words?

Was it all of us who see the universe only from one position and condemn all those who adopt a different attitude?

In this day of increasing social tensions -- at civic, national, and global levels -- I feel we citizens of Andover have a responsibility to speak and act with mature sensitivity when confronted with the vital issues of our times. I also feel we have a right to expect a more balanced performance from our civic leaders than your editorial exhibited.

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

Modern science has seemingly solved one of the oldest and most perplexing problems of man. It might not be such a blessing but this new marvel will surely bring about some very interesting events.

A young graduate student in Ottawa, Canada, believes he has discovered a way to test a person's I.Q. without asking a single question. His discovery, which has aroused scientific interest around the world, is an apparent direct link between the brain's reaction to a stimulus and a person's intelligence.

Scientists have been searching for this link for years without success. Now, with equipment worth only about $200, it seems possible to determine a person's I.Q. directly from the brain. No test, no questions or answers -- just from the brain itself. It takes only two minutes and it is painless. It cannot lie or be fooled. It is cheat proof.

This new intelligence testing machine is quite simple. It records and photographs the brain's reaction to a stimulus -- a light flashing into the eyes -- which illustrates the biological efficiency of the brain. The photograph comes out in the form of a graph. A study of the graph indicates the intelligence of the subject. This breakthrough means that in two minutes you can tell the true intelligence of anyone. No fooling around or guessing.

Such scientific marvels should be handled with utmost care. If this new, inexpensive I.Q. testing machine got in the hands of just anyone, think how terrible the consequences could be. Suppose a good, hard working married man go one and took it home. Within just two minutes he could prove once and for all that his fine little wife didn't have all her marbles. This could mean big trouble around the house for years to come.

Think what a squabble could result if the poor man took the intelligence machine to a family reunion -- of his wife's relatives. In 30 minutes he could substantiate what he had thought all along -- that his wife had inherited her lack of intelligence from a long line of low I.Q. relatives! Such fun and games with the I.Q. machine would be fine for a warmup but the big blow-up would come if the good voters took the I.Q. machine to Washington. The seat of our government and the playground of our glorious leaders would give the machine a real workout.

What would a test of our Washington flock show? Would the little light directed into their eyes just go straight through or would it reflect back? Would the machine have low enough readings to pick up the I.Q. of our faithful bureaucrats? Would the machine just give up and blow a fuse?

The business world could also get a real jolt. Think of the fun you could have at civic meetings. Would the big wheels have the high I.Q. or would they just be low men on the I.Q. chart?

How would the boss justify a beautiful secretary with little or no I.Q.? What would dear old dad do with a junior with an I.Q. lower than the janitor's? What a change the company organization chart would be in for if they started selecting officers on a basis of I.Q.

For years the Democrats have been saying that the Republicans have nothing but a void between their ears. Of course the Republicans return the favor with added little insults of their own. With this new wonder machine, each party could send spies to the others' conventions and prove without a doubt the validity of any charges they might make.

When we have out little fun and games time every four years and select the head cockatoo to lead out flock, we could have the true picture of the intelligence of each candidate. Not that real brain power is a prerequisite for public office, even the high office of President.

We have been getting along just fine with out regular politicians. Who knows how we would fare if we selected only intelligent candidates. We might not be able to afford them. They might not turn out to be as cheap as the ones we now have.

It might be a good idea to check the new I.Q. machine before it messes up the world any more than it already is. Come to think about it, I'm not too sure I want the I.Q. machine looking into my eyes. I have lots of people thinking I have good sense. I'll stand on my I.Q. but just take my word that it is high.

Mrs. Philip L. Hanst, President
League of Women Voters of Andover

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN
The Editorial of May 29th entitled "A Disgrace" was a blind and insensitive treatment of the Memorial Day incidents. There were many statements in it that I find disturbing and fallacious.

It seems obvious that to "make a shambles" of a ceremony honoring the dead is disgraceful. From news reports of the incidents, however, it seems equally as obvious that the fault lay, at least in part, with persons other than the armband wearers.

A newspaper that makes much of respect for law should take into consideration the legal aspects of this situation. To distribute anti-ABM matter is not illegal. To wear an armband, the Supreme Court has said, is not illegal. To refuse to serve a customer in a public restaurant because of political affiliation, or, as in this case, alleged political affiliation, is illegal. To accost someone is, of course, illegal. No matter how reprehensible, tactless, or tasteless it may be considered to engage in the active advocacy of peace and disarmament on Memorial Day, it is a licit exercise of a legitimate right.

Another distressing point was the reference to the presence of a magazine editor. It is easily argued that there would have been no disturbance had the peace advocates not been present. It is just as simple to insist that order would have been maintained had no one discriminated against them, or fought with them. Guilt is not so simply placed.

Other statements, such as the reference to "youthful...long-haired males and mini-skirted females" are reactionary and naive. It is dangerous to attempt limiting support for disarmament and activity against the ABM to this segment, or to any other. The implication of such an assumption is patently harmful, unfair, and insulting to many distinguished and concerned citizens.

All should honor American War dead, men who lost their lives for causes they believed in. But that honor would be hypocritical and lighthearted if its sincerity were not matched by a sincere attempt to end war itself.

Martin W. Daly, Jr.
20 Walcott Avenue

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN
In your editorial of May 29 entitled "A Disgrace," you make a cautious acknowledgment of the citizen's right to dissent, but then spend much of the rest of the editorial regretting and warning against acts of dissent. Can you have it both ways?

At least three of the speakers during the town's Memorial Day observances spoke with passion and sincerity of the need for and the widespread desire for peace in the world and particularly in Southeast Asia. You do not view those sentiments with alarm. But when a number of young people wear armbands marked with a "peace symbol," this is seen as bringing us "discredit," or "a black mark on Andover."

You speak of people making a shambles of paying tribute. There may have been some in town who did so, but I was impressed by the quiet, dignified, orderly and respectful attitude and deportment of the people I observed wearing armbands, at least in the vicinity of the parade and the Memorial observances.

You write, "Our country, founded on freedom, must remain so." And then you go on to state that various categories of youth had better not think they can "take over." Do you mean to imply that freedom to speak and act and participate and work for change extends only to those who think in certain acceptable ways or dress in certain acceptable ways?

You say that respect for law and order must be maintained. I know of half a dozen young men who had armbands forceably and, I assume, illegally pulled or torn off them on our orderly streets. Were they threatening law and order? A local businessman emulated that one-time Atlanta restaurateur, James Maddox. Is that respect for law and order?

There are many things that may bring discredit to a town. One such thing might be the possibility that a town become more concerned with its "image" or with order than it is with freedom and law.

A fever thermometer is much more than a "health aid"; it is an extremely accurate and valuable diagnostic instrument. The bore through which the mercury flows is smaller in diameter than a human hair, and it has a constriction chamber which is so fine that it does not allow the mercury to retreat from its highest reading without being shaken down.

If one does not drop it, smash it against some object while it is being shaken down, or place it under hot water, it should last a lifetime. A clinical fever thermometer is one product that will not lose its value or accuracy with age.

BUSINESS PROFILES*Let Del Landscaping Beautify Your Grounds

Outside of its actual construction and style, there's nothing that adds to the beauty of your home or place of business more than proper landscaping. Del Landscaping, 127 Lowell Street in Methuen, can fill your landscaping needs on complete design, planting and maintenance work or on special problem areas.

Yes, professional landscaping is as near as your telephone. Daniel Langevin, owner and operator of Del Landscaping, is an Andover resident, and will be happy to go to your home at your convenience and outline procedures for your landscaping needs. You no longer need to worry about which shrub to plant where and how to do it. Del Landscaping will plan your lot from the gravel up, move top soil and put in attractive shrubbery, flowering shrubs and ornamental trees. To insure complete satisfaction, color sketches will be submitted for your approval before any actual work begins.

Del Landscaping grows many of its own shrubs and handles rare and unusual plants, including Bonsai type oriental plants such as Japanese table top pine and umbrella pine. They specialize in landscaping slopes and specific problem areas as well as rock garden plantings which include the use of colored gravel and walks for an attractive decorative effect.

In addition, Del Landscaping puts in sod lawns. The sods come in rolls directly from a sod farm in New York, dormant, in freezer cars. Beds are prepared and the sod is laid. When the sun hits it, the grass comes to life and you have an instant, weed-free lawn. This is particularly useful for commercial and industrial plants where seeding would be hampered by traffic.

For all your landscaping needs - design, construction or maintenance on residential, commercial or industrial property call Dan Langevin at Del Landscaping, 682-9709. Enjoy the advantage of his experience in this field.

The evening will see the presentation of two Annual Andover Awards: The President's Award, bestowed upon a Chamber member who has made a significant contribution to the business organization and to the community during the past year; and the Community Service Award given to an Andover resident in recognition of his or her creative involvement in community betterment.

Entertainment will be provided by a rapidly rising vocalist, Patti Delaney. Miss Delaney has recently made appearances on national radio and television programs, and is expected to be one of the nation's top singers within several years.

A Dorchester man had his truck hijacked at gunpoint Wednesday and was left on Route 93 in Andover.

Preston Mosby, Jr., 30 Alexander St., Dorchester, told Sgt. James R. Lynch that he was stopped for traffic in Somerville, when a man approached and ordered him to drive over Route 93.

The truck, owned by Morley's Service, 1 Walnut St., Roxbury, was loaded with ceiling tile and dog food, according to police.

Mosby was ordered out of the cab of the 20 foot long truck on Route 93 between Dascom Road and Route 133 interchanges and the hijacker continued north.

An all points bulletin was issued by police in a search for the vehicle and the operator.
